Referring to a private club ordinance passed by the City Council later in the evening, Robert Dry, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. T.L. Cheung of the Rice Bowl restaurant, pointed out that private clubs are forbidden within 1000 feet of a church not church-owned property. He told council members that the restaurant would not be detrimental to the proposed Bethany Bible Fellowship since it could not be seen by the church and only one sign would be erected. He noted that a private club on the southeast corner of the Parker-Independence intersection would be outside the 1000 feet but have a much greater impact on the church. # Alcohol Sales Postponed

BY PAM TROBOY

Beer and wine sales in Plano may be as much as 60 days away.

The City Council Monday night agreed to suspend the sale of beer and wine for off-premise consumption until amendments regulating that sale can be considered. Residents approved the local option Saturday with a 5,791-4,464 vote.

Mayor Norman Whitsitt declared the problem an emergency and asked the council to meet Wednesday at 6 p.m. with the Planning and Zoning Commission to discuss pertinent amendments to the zoning ordinance.

Attorney Bill Roberts said he will ask County Judge Nathan White to deny or withhold any application for the sale of such beverages in Plano until amendments "deemed necessary to provide for the health, safety and general welfare of the public" are acted on. The council has a maximum of 60 days to approve such amendments.

The council also formally passed a private club ordinance which allows restaurants meeting strict criteria to obtain special use permits to sell alcoholic beverages.

In a related action, council members denied a permit to the proposed Rice Bowl in Lancers Square Shopping Center because it is too close to a proposed church.

With Larry Jackson stepping down because of his connection with

Council Asks for Rules To Govern 'Wet' City

Bethany Bible Fellowship, the council denied the request of Mr. and Mrs. T.L. Cheung on a 2-1 vote. Jack Harvard favored the restaurant while Bob Collins was absent.

Bob Dry, attorney for the Cheungs, argued that the proposed private club ordinance (approved at close of business) restricts a club from within 1,000 feet of a church, not church-owned property.

"The prohibition in the ordinance deals with an actual building," he stressed. "Churches all across the country own a vast amount of property acquired in many ways."

A spokesman for the church, David Reimer, pointed out that Bethany Bible intends to build on its land and added that a site plan will be before the planning commission next week.

After retiring into executive session to consult with Roberts on the question of church or church property raised by Dry, the council decided that the old ordinance governing private clubs (no specific restrictions included) was still in effect.

Jack Hatchell moved that the request be denied because of the restaurant's nearness to the church.

Harvard was for the issuance of the permit since, he said, a store adjacent to the church would be allowed to sell beer and wine under state law. On the other hand, he noted that the Rice Bowl would be almost 900 feet away and shielded from the church property by the remainder of the shopping center.

In other action, the council denied an appeal of a planning commission decision that a lot on the northwest corner of Avenue G and 16th should remain zoned for apartments.

Joe Rushing, who spoke for the applicant Kathy Whitworth, requested light commercial zoning for an auto repair shop. He pointed out that adjacent property is already zoned commercial and that the section zoned for apartments is too small to develop.

Carmen Haggard, who represented her parents, pointed out, however, that very little of the light commercial property is being used for that purpose.

She said her parents' land and that of elderly residents nearby is "maintained with pride" and urged the council to help the neighborhood retain its residential flavor.

The appeal was unanimously denied because of the "existing character of the neighborhood."

All other items were approved and only one aroused any controversy. George Schuler was allowed to delete a screening wall requirement for Regal Square.

With the mayor casting the deciding vote, the council agreed 3-2 to drop the screen since adjacent property has since been rezoned from townhouses to offices.

As Whitsitt pointed out, the city does not require screening between two commercial developments. He told Anthony Harwath, the owner of the rezoned property who protested the deletion, that he could, however, build the wall on his own property if he wished.

Items approved routinely after public hearings were the rezoning of 21.8 acres on the northwest corner of Park Boulevard and Coit Road from light commercial to retail and the rezoning of 15.8 acres on Parker Road about one-half mile west of Coit Road from retail to agriculture. The latter case required a unanimous vote because the action was taken at the behest of the council over the objections of the owner.

Industrial zoning was granted on 12.8 acres on the southwest corner of Southern Pacific Railroad and Parker Road and 10 acres on the southeast corner of St. Louis and Southwestern Railroad and North Star Road.

In an emotional appeal, Norman Haskell pleaded with the council to keep a posted 30 mph speed limit on Los Rios Boulevard rather than the 35 mph recommended by the Citizens Traffic Safety Support Commission.

Liquor Forces Praise High Election Turnout

BY TERRI ANDERSON

After a month of anticipation and contrasting viewpoints, both "wet" and "dry" forces have agreed that the people's will was expressed in Saturday's successful local option election.

The proposition, which resulted in the biggest voter turnout in Plano history, passed 5,791 to 4,464 and will allow the legal sale of beer and wine for off-premise consumption.

"Obviously, we are very happy with the results and the high voter turnout," said Mike Bearden of Plano Citizens for Common Sense, organizers of the wet-dry move. "We feel like the people of Plano have decided the issue and that the City Council will abide by the will of the people."

Citizens for a Dry Plano chairman John Clark also said he was pleased with the number of people who voted Saturday and added that he thought the election was well-conducted.

"I feel like all of the people were well-informed as to all aspects of the issue," Clark said. "This is a good reflection of the attitudes of the community. I would hope that the people, whether they voted wet or dry, would support the City Council as they look at what is best for the community."

munity."

Clark referred to the Council's plans to draw up a zoning ordinance to govern the location of establishments that may sell beer and wine.

"We're in a Democratic society. The people can express their views at the polls and they've done so," the "dry" chairman added. "I hope it turns out to be what is best for Plano."

He said he hoped that the "other side's" statements that the sale of beer and wine would not change Plano would come true.

"We maintain our feelings that the legal sale of beer and wine for off-premise consumption only will not change the quality of our community," responded Bearden. "The people will realize that when they can buy beer and wine in their local supermarkets."

"Many people in Plano worked very hard and they are all due a note of thanks for a job well done," Bearden added. "We would also like to express our appreciation to both sides for expressing their convictions at the polls, which reinforces our strong beliefs that Plano is made up of intelligent, articulate, involved individuals on both sides."

Although no one on either side of the issue expressed displeasure at the way the election was handled, many others close to the balloting said they felt a change in the election laws was needed.

County Clerk James Webb, in charge of the election mechanics, said Saturday night that he felt election laws in Texas needed to be standardized. He said that it was "a shame" that the county possessed such a large amount of sophisticated voting equipment yet, because of antiquated liquor election laws, was forced to use paper ballots Saturday.

Webb also claimed that the long lines at Wilson and Bowman Middle Schools, locations of the voting, could not be helped because the liquor election laws also limited the county as to the number of polling places they could provide.

In west Plano, 6,250 voters crowded into the Wilson cafeteria and at some points waited up to an hour and a half to cast their ballots. Election judge Richard May said he was forced to ask people at the ends of lines to volunteer to work in order to keep the balloting moving as quickly as possible.

Eastiders numbered 3,418 at Bowman Middle School where election judge Mrs. Fred Miers also had to call in extra volunteers. The wait at Bowman was about 30 minutes at some points.

Laws Cause Delay In Option Canvass

Collin County Commissioners could not canvass Saturday's local option election results Monday morning due to yet another quirk in the already-confusing alcoholic beverage laws.

The old-fashioned statutes, which were also responsible for the paper ballots used in the Plano election and for the limitation to only two polling places, state that canvassing must take place on the fifth day after a liquor election is held, or as soon after the fifth day "as is practical."

Commissioners will canvass the returns and declare the option official at the next meeting Oct. 17. The law also states that the sale of beer and wine in the city will become legal upon declaration of the official results.

Plano City Council members, however, have announced a 60-day moratorium on the sale of alcoholic beverages (see related story, this page).

In other action, commissioners reviewed a recent amendment to article 326 (K)-67 of Vernon's Annotated Texas Statutes pertaining to the Criminal District Attorney of Collin County.

The amendment calls for D.A. Tom O'Connell to cease his practice of civil law after Dec. 31, 1978. The amendment, offered by State Rep. Bob Hendricks, does not provide a penalty or sanction for violation.

County Judge Nathan E. White Jr. said that the amendment was not made at the request of the Commissioners Court or O'Connell and that neither were aware until recently that the bill had been passed.

White and the commissioners determined at yesterday's meeting that it would advise the District Attorney that continued funding of his office would not be possible after Dec. 31, 1978 if O'Connell continued his practice of civil law.

It is expected that an Attorney General's opinion or other clarification will be sought by D.A. O'Connell.

"There are no ill feelings related to this matter, and I hope it will be resolved shortly," noted Judge White. Commissioners approved Sheriff Jerry Burton's request for several capital outlay items included in the 1977-78 budget. The items included a rapidprint clock ($300), an IBM Selectric II typewriter ($700), a T.I. calculator ($100) and three Smith and Wesson shotguns ($294).

Collin Memorial Hospital administrator Pete Huey presented September's accounts payable and financial statement for the hospital, which were approved by the court.

Harvard Still Against Tax-Sponsored Spouses

Councilman Jack Harvard again Monday night asked the remainder of the council to forego taking their wives and other relatives to the Texas Municipal League Conference at city expense.

Harvard, who is not attending the three-day conference which opens in San Antonio Sunday, asked council members to reconsider the decision to take "10 spouses and relatives" of the council and selected city employees.

Larry Jackson challenged Harvard's view and said the expense is valid to compensate employees for service well done.

"This is one of those things that is a reward for a good job," he added. "I'm all for it if someone will take the time to go and better himself by looking at new ideas."

Jack Hatchell, Norman Whitsitt and

Louise Sherill also defended the proposition. Hatchell pointed out that staff members spend a lot of time at city hall after hours with no compensation. A council member also said privately that the trip rewards family members who give up their time with council members and employees.

Harvard stressed his belief that employees are already adequately compensated and can afford to take their wives at their own expense.

A group of 20 is tentatively scheduled to make the trip from Plano. Council members who plan to attend are Hatchell and wife, Jackson and wife, Sherrill and daughter and Whitsitt. Eight staff members and five spouses also have tentative plans to attend.

Murder-Suicide in Plano

Twin shotgun blasts ended the lives of a local couple Monday morning. George Fred Wiley, 45, of Wylie and his estranged wife Joyce Ann Wiley, 33, of 2416 Plateau were found dead in the west Plano residence shortly after noon. Preliminary indications are that Wiley shot his divorced wife once in the chest before going in the kitchen and turning the shotgun on himself. Time of death will be established after autopsies have been conducted, but some children playing in the area believe they heard shots earlier that day. The bodies were reported to police at 12:37 p.m. by a business associate of Wiley who had gone to the home to check on his absence from work. Detectives are still investigating the incident. (Staff photo by Mike Newman).

Lott Home Destroyed By Blaze

The home of Henry M. Lott was totally destroyed by fire early this morning.

The two-story frame home on Preston Road about 1.5 miles south of SH 121 burned to the ground as Plano and Frisco firefighters stood by.

Fire Marshal Bill Threet said firefighters were able to see that the home was fully involved in flames from several miles away. Frisco was called when Plano officers believed the home was in that city. The fire was actually in the county, however.

Plano firefighters were able to pull away two cars from the rear of the home and to protect a detached garage and a guest house, but the main residence was already totally destroyed by the time Plano arrived.

The Frisco department extinguished a grass fire in a field south of the home.

Lott said a strong wind woke him shortly after 2 a.m. He found that the house was filled with smoke and was able to escort his wife who had recently undergone open heart surgery to safety.

He said the roof was already involved in flames, so he drove to a neighbor's to report the fire. Plano received word of the fire at 2:21 a.m. and the first of four pieces of equipment arrived at 2:29 a.m. The 12 men returned to the station at 5:49 a.m.

Teacher Overcomes Learning Disabilities

When Janis Tillerson's students ask her how to spell a word, she says, "Look it up in the dictionary."

She's not being mean; she's not being harsh. "They have as good a chance as I do at spelling it right."

Janis has dyslexia. Language and its symbols are difficult for her to comprehend. Yet, she's learned to learn.

Dyslexia has been called by many names and given many definitions. One acceptable definition has been a translation of the word itself: "dys-, deficient or inadequate; -lexia, words." Dyslexic people vary from the norm when it comes to handling and interpreting - the language.

The problem has been around for the many centuries during which man had communicated through a written and spoken language. Over the past 80 years, people with specific learning disabilities have been identified and research has proceeded to develop methods of training.

Success in Learning is the theme of the 1977 World Conference on Dyslexia to be held Nov. 9-12 in Dallas at the Fairmont Hotel. Sponsored by the Orton Society, an international nonprofit organization offering leadership in dyslexia research, the conference is open to the public.

(For registration information, contact Dallas Branch, Orton Society, 7986 Fallmeadow, Dallas 75248; phone, (214) 239-3218.)

Janis, as a dyslexic person whose problem was identified and who then received training, has experienced success in learning. After being told she probably wouldn't finish high school, she entered programs at Children's Medical Center, Scottish Rite Hospital and the Dean of Memorial Learning Center and is now working on her doctorate while teaching special education in Greenville.

One method of teaching people with dyslexia-adults and children-is the Orton-Gillingham approach, breaking the language down into its smallest elements and then using all the senses to teach it.

Where the person who does not have dyslexia takes the learning process for granted, the person with the learning disability has to learn, to deliberately overlearn each symbol and concept.

Janis Tillerson says that she must treat each written passage as if it were in a foreign language, decoding the words, saying them verbally and then reading them aloud for meaning.

Key elements of teaching, then, are structure (a person with dyslexia must systematically approach and build a language), repetition (because many people with dyslexia do not have automatic word and letter "memory"), multisensory (using learning channels other than sight and hearing).

A person with dyslexia not only has to see and hear a letter or word but also has to "feel" it. The latter (kinesthetic) process is accomplished through such exercises as feeling a three-dimensional letter block, air-writing (forming an invisible letter in the air, moving not only the eye but also the entire arm), practicing on a chalkboard and practicing handwriting.

Janis recalls that many times her bad school work was put on the bulletin board-that she was ridiculed by fellow students who called her dumb.

"You need to reinforce a child's success, not his failures," she insists.

U.S. Marine Corps Presents New Option

The Marine Corps Recruiting Station in Dallas announced today that the Marine Corps will pay enlistment bonuses up to $2500 for enlistees in 91 military occupational specialties (MOS) this fiscal year.

The bonus program will be in effect from Oct. 1, 1977 to Sept. 30, 1978 and will pay qualified enlistees either $2500 for certain combat arms MOSs, or $1500 for entry into one of the select technical skills.

The combat arms bonus will be paid to qualified enlistees in the infantry, artillery and armor occupational fields. The $1500 technical skills bonus will be paid to persons qualifying for one of 78 different technical MOSs. The technical fields include communications, public affairs, legal and aviation.

Upon enlistment, a new recruit will know which occupational field he will be trained for but will not know which specialty in that field he will be assigned.

Payment of the bonuses will be made in a lump sum after the Marine completes training and qualifies for his job.

For more information about the program and to qualify for a bonus, contact your local Marine Corps Recruiter or call 214-749-2708.

Pan Am to Fly Over Poles 50th Anniversary Flight Scheduled

By MURRAY J. BROWN UPI Travel Editor

Back on Oct. 28, 1927, a Fokker F7 trimotor plane took off from a dirt runway at Key West, Fla., and flew across 90 miles of water to Havana, Cuba, carrying sacks of mail in the first scheduled international flight by an American aircraft.

Freshly painted on the side of the plane were three letters: PAA — which stood for Pan American Airways. Within three months the fledgling airline was flying passengers as well as mail and cargo on regular schedules across the Straits of Florida.

It was a small beginning for what was to become one of the world's top international air carriers. Pan American World Airways' fleet of 100 jetliners now fly an average of 8.4 million passengers annually to all corners of the world.

To commemorate its 50th anniversary, and in what it says is a salute to the international air transport system, Pan Am will fly a Boeing 747SP jumbo jet on a record-setting round the world flight over the North and South Poles on Oct. 28 this year.

Only 150 passengers will be carried on the flight in the longrange SP (Special Performance) four-engine jetliner. The announcement said seating will be restricted to 22 first-class and 128 economy class to maximize the comfort for the round-the-world fliers.

William T. Seawell, Pan Am chairman and chief executive officer, in announcing the flight said it was intended to "focus world attention to the scope, capability and human and technical achievements of today's global air network which has developed over the past half century to serve the world under the leadership of the U.S. flag airlines and U.S. aircraft and engine manufacturers."

Seats on the flight will be available to the public on a first-come, first-served basis. Around the world fares would be $3,333 for first class and $2,222 for economy. Passengers will have the option of flying the entire route or one or more sectors.

The plane will take off from San Francisco, fly over the North Pole to London, then on to Cape Town, South Africa, over the South Pole to Auckland, New Zealand, and then back to San Francisco. There will be stops of about two hours each in London, Cape Town and Auckland.

The entire flight will cover 26,642 statute miles in an estimated flying time of 48 hours, 40 minutes.

Passengers making the complete flight will receive an official observer card from the National Aeronautics Assn. and certificates from Pan Am and the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, the world-wide agency which approves speed, height and distance records.

A commemorative service will be held at Key West at which Pan American officials will dispatch the over-the-poles flight via a special communications hookup.

The announcement said passengers will be offered a wide range of in-flight services, including full meals and snacks on each of the four sectors, 24-hour bar service, selections of movies and various games and contests provided by four separate in-flight service crews.

Entertainment will include a fashion show, strolling musician and a magician. There will be a hairdresser aboard for women, according to the announcement.

United Airlines also observed a birthday this year — the 50th anniversary of transcontinental air service. It was on Sept. 1, 1927, that United's predecessors —

National Air Transport (NAT) and Boeing Air Transport (BAT) — linked up for the first time in Chicago, Ill., to provide direct ocean-to-ocean service. NAT flew the New York-Chicago route while BAT provided services between San Francisco and Chicago.

The daring passengers of 50 years ago flew in either the two-place cabin of singleengine Boeing 40As or atop mailbags in the front cargo pit of Douglas M4s, also single engine. The lone passenger had to wear goggles, a flying suit and a parachute.

The flight between San Francisco and New York took 32 hours, 15 minutes, with 15 stops along the way. The fare for the flight over the original NAT-BAT cross-country route was $404.

Allen Growth Soars

The number of families moving to Allen continued at a high rate during September.

Some 60 families moved to the city during the month, bringing the total to 413 new families during the first nine months of 1977—a monthly average of 46 families.

Broken down into population, an estimate 1,400 persons have moved to Allen so far this year. Approximately 20 percent of that total has moved away, leaving a net gain of 1,120 residents for the first nine months of 1977.

Duty Free Store Opens in Bangkok
BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Thailand's first off-airport duty free store opened in downtown Bangkok in August.

Operated by the national flag carrier Thai International, the store is open to passengers who have confirmed tickets for flights out of the country.

Store officials said its main purpose is to give travelers time for leisurely shopping and to insure they are not disappointed when they arrive late for airline flights at the airport and find themselves short of time in the last-minute rush.

Items are selected and paid for at the store. The traveler is given a receipt and picks up his purchase at the airport as he boards his flight.

Argentina Seeking New Resort Operator
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — The Argentine government has announced it will accept bids for the operating concession of the posh Gran Hotel Provincial in the resort city of Mar del Plata.

The beachfront hotel, site of the United Nations water conference in March, is owned by the government but operated by a private firm in accordance with government-imposed concession standards.

The government took the concession away from the Rio de la Plata company June 16 for noncompliance with the standards and is offering the 20-year contract in international bidding.

FIRST PRIZE $2500

THIRD PRIZE $1000

CONTEST RULES

Listed at the bottom of each advertisement on this page are games to be played during the coming weekend. Using the accompanying entry blank or a reasonable facsimile, list the team which you believe will win that game by the corresponding numbers. If you believe that game will be a tie, write tie in the blank instead of the name of either team. In the separate "Tie Breaker" game you must predict a score of that game. The tiebreaker is used only if there is a tie in the regular contest. One entry per contestant may be submitted, however, each member of a family may enter. Only one member of a family may win in any given contest. Submitting an entry is agreement that all decisions of the judges is final. When using a reasonable facsimile, entry blanks may not be machine reproduced. Only hand drawn blanks depicting the original blank are acceptable. All entries become the property of the Plano Daily Star-Courier and will not be returned. Entries must be received in the Star-Courier or be postmarked by 3 p.m. Friday preceding the weekend of the games. Winners will be announced in the following Tuesday's Star-Courier.

TOM THUMB and PAGE
ONE STORE or TWO?

Consumers frequently ask me this question and the answer is actually three! Here is a little information about each:
There are 11 Tom Thumb-PAGE Food and Drug Centers where the supermarket and drug store are built under one roof. This type of store offers the consumer "one stop shopping" for just about everything — from bread and milk to gourmet produce, plants, a pharmacy, and a deli-bakery. We plan to open three new Tom Thumb-PAGE Food and Drug Centers in the near future.
Tom Thumb Supermarkets offer the consumer a complete supermarket with meat, produce and everything from soup to nuts, but no pharmacy. You'll find a limited non-food selection in these stores. Non-foods include items like paint and cosmetics. There are 26 Tom Thumb Supermarkets.
PAGE Super Drug Stores offer a complete drug store and pharmacy plus a wide variety of non-food items. You'll find a limited selection of food items in these stores. There are 12 PAGE Super Drug Stores.
All stores are located in or near Dallas and are owned and operated by Cullum Companies, Inc. The office, warehouse and distribution center are located at 14303 Inwood Road, Dallas, 75240.
If you have questions about our stores, our people, our products or our services, don't hesitate to call or write me. Mary Lu Waddell, Director of Consumer Affairs, 14303 Inwood Road, Dallas, 75240. Or call 690-8856.
